I want to commend Rex Whitford and the team at Wealth for Life; Rex has managed my portfolio and that of my elderly mother for a very long time. When the GFC hit, Rex had the right advice. By NOT selling and holding onto my portfolio I was able to buy into other shares at a lower cost that is now resulting in improved values and profits for me. His fees are quite reasonable; after all you would pay for the services of a Tradesman, then why not on someone who actually cares about me, not just my investments. In an age of electronics and self-help, it's nice to be able to talk to Rex, and have my financials taken care of with good sound advice relevant to my needs. Yes I would suggest you contact Rex, it's the best investment decision you could make.
